Retreat Leader

Fr. Steve Wolf is a pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, Clarksville, Tennessee. After 14 tax seasons as an accountant, he attended Mundelein Seminary, Illinois, and was ordained for the Diocese of Nashville in 1997.

He served on the Board of Catholic Charities, was Director of Vocation Formation for the Diocese of Nashville from 2001-2006, and was active in Congregations Offering a Living Wage. He serves on the Nashville Diocese College of Consultors, the Board of Nashville PFLAG, and is active in Tennesseans for Alternatives to the Death Penalty.

Steve is the author of several books and essays for faith sharing and prayer, including Gay Respect in the Good News. He spends most Mondays in silence and solitude writing for faith sharing groups and for spiritual direction. Since February 2017, Steve has been meeting at his parish with a small group of parents and LGBT Catholics, who pray together and share stories with each other.

Retreat Description

For gay priests, brothers and deacons, the retreat is designed to develop better self-understanding, spirituality, friendships, and relationship with the institutional Church.

For diocesan clergy personnel, congregational leaders and formation ministers, the retreat will develop better understandings of the personal and spiritual journeys of gay men in clerical and religious life.

Retreatants will explore ways gay clergy and religious answer the call to beloved celibacy, keeps searching for God in good will, ministers to anger, resentment, and fear as did Jesus, and accepts the grace of a kind of symbiosis of the incarnation and resurrection as an apostle in the world.

Retreatants will receive copies of Steve Wolf's essay Gay Respect in the Good News and his faith-sharing resource Forty Penances for Spiritual Exercise.

Steve will draw from the pastoral message of Pope Francis and reflect on some writings of Thomas Merton, James Alison, and others. He will also share some of his experience from participation in PFLAG and his parish group of parents and LGBT Catholics.
