Description

The story of Jesus has fascinated the Christian world for the past 2000 years, and there is no indication that the fascination is abating. Ever-new discoveries, especially in the past 100 years, open up fresh vistas of understanding and empowering challenges for following Jesus in our time. Diarmuid will explore these challenges, and their significance for our daily faith, in this retreat-workshop.

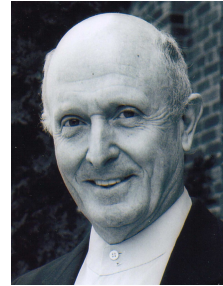

This retreat consists of presentations, small and large group discussions, communal prayer, and opportunities for private reflection.

The retreat opens with check-in at 4 pm on Monday and concludes at 1:30 pm after lunch on Wednesday.

Transformed into the Compassion of Christ

October 9-11, 2009

Stella Maris Retreat Center
130 East Genesee Street
Skaneateles, NY 13152
(near Syracuse)

Facilitated by
Michael Crosby, OFM Cap

Description

St. Paul tells us that, if anyone is in Christ, that person is a "new creation," a "new order." In a world where people are easily scapegoated as being "out of order" or "disordered," this part of Paul's message is truly "good news." The weekend will examine this theme from the perspective of our relationships and invite us to move from negative ways of relating to those that will bring about the new order of trust, collaboration, non-violence, peace, love, and compassion.

This retreat consists of presentations, small and large group discussions, communal prayer, and opportunities for private reflection.

The retreat opens with check-in at 4 pm on Friday and concludes at 12:15 pm after liturgy on Sunday.
